Aloha mai kākou:

On behalf of the Board of Trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, welcome to the 2010 Hawaiian Business Conference and Economic Expo: Ho‘okahua Wa‘iwi (Economic Self-sufficiency) – From Advocacy to Action: Building a Sustainable Economy to support Hawai‘i’s Future. A founding principle of OHA’s first economic development conference in 2006 was to assist Native Hawaiians to gain access to affordable credit and the training and technical assistance that would advance economic well-being and improve family income.

This fourth annual business conference continues the tradition by reaching out to economic development and business professionals, financial executives, government contractors, and representatives from the Department of Defense Western Regional Council for Small Business, United States General Services Administration, and United States Small Business Administration.

Together we will look at economic development from the Hawaiian perspective, explore the abundance of contracting opportunities largely due to advocacy by our outstanding Hawai‘i Congressional delegation, and examine the role that clean energy can play in revitalizing our economy and environment. We will continue to emphasize an economic development approach that places significant value on maintaining harmony and balance with the land and waters we love, even as we increase family income for Native Hawaiians.

For the first time, we have expanded the conference to three days of workshops and talk story sessions, which will ignite thinking and action towards achieving a bolder vision for Hawai‘i that our ancestors would bless and one that will benefit our children.

We have organized the conference to help you find answers towards your new career opportunity or learn new ways to start, expand or revitalize a business. Our objective is to help you gain greater self-sufficiency and have better choices for you and your family.

As I did in 2006, I offer you a challenge and a pledge. I challenge you to absorb the knowledge and experience presented over the next three days and set specific objectives and targets for your future. The Office of Hawaiian Affairs will advocate for systems changes and improvements that will lend to achieving your goal.

No nā ‘ōiwi ‘ōlino,

Haunani Apoliona, MSW
Chairperson
Board of Trustees
Aloha käkou,

With the recent announcement of the new strategic plan and management structure to better serve Hawaiians, OHA is making the transition into a more streamlined, performance-based organization. Our fourth annual business conference reflects our shift in focus from serving individual needs to applying its resources to programs and activities that will lead to systemic change to improve the lives of all Hawaiians. As Haunani Apoliona, Chairperson for the Office of Hawaiian Affairs Board of Trustees has said, OHA must continue to grow and evolve to aid the Hawaiian people and to perpetuate our unique Hawaiian heritage and culture.

We kick off this year’s conference by highlighting OHA’s shift in focus to advocacy and promoting systemic change in six priority areas: economic self-sufficiency, health, education, culture, land & water (‘āina) and governance. To truly have an impact on issues facing Hawaiians, OHA will base our advocacy on accurate data, sound research and performance-based criteria to achieve measurable results. The U.S. Census Bureau presentation and Native Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce analytical workshops are indicative of our commitment to research and collaborations.

OHA will continue to partner with business organizations and governmental agencies that work towards its goals. This year’s conference will feature a community forum by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development on jobs and economic growth. We are also teaming with the Hawai‘i Energy Policy Forum and the Hawai‘i Procurement Technical Assistance Center to bring the best opportunities in the growing energy sector and government contracting, taking advantage of funding available to Hawai‘i under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. (ARRA)

The conference will conclude with a roundtable discussion of Hawaiian leaders discussing the upcoming 2011 Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Ministerial and Leaders Meeting—the first APEC summit in the United States since 1993. The roundtable will advise what role and participation OHA can advocate for on behalf of our Hawaiian community.

We look forward to a challenging and exciting conference. Thank you for joining us!

Me ka ‘oia‘i’o

Clyde W. Nämu‘o
Chief Executive Officer
Aloha kākou,

Welcome to the 2010 Hawaiian Business Conference & Economic Expo! For the past four years, this conference has effectively brought the Hawaiian and broader communities together to explore small business development, jobs creation and income generating opportunities.

Because of our remoteness as an island community, Hawaiians have historically created sustainable economic models with a deep understanding of our physical environment and human resource potential. This conference carries on that tradition by focusing on mutually beneficial community partnerships over three days of intensive workshops, keynote addresses and panel discussions.

The first day is called “Envisioning Economic Development Through a Hawaiian Lens” in partnership with the Native Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce. Planning and research play a key role in identifying emerging markets and industry segments. We will hear from Congresswoman Mazie Hirono and the U.S. Census Bureau. In a number of break-out sessions organized by the Native Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce, we will investigate and analyze the comparative advantage of the Hawaiian approach to tourism, health, government operations, information technology, the arts, finance, development and construction, and renewable energies.

At a time when economic stimulus is driving the resurgence of our economy, the second day of our conference will highlight government contracting. OHA’s Hawai‘i Procurement Technical Assistance Center and the Office of Small Business Utilization within the U.S. General Services Administration have jointly organized a number of exciting sessions that focus on the multi-billion dollar opportunities that are at Hawai‘i’s doorstep. Governor Linda Lingle will address the Undersea Cable and Big Wind projects that are intended to help transform Hawai‘i’s energy future. Vice Commander Paul Fuligni (U.S.N.) will offer an update to the Navy’s Guam construction projects, which is part of an overall $8 billion commitment to move much of the Department of Defense’s presence in Okinawa to Guam over the next five years.

The third day of the conference is entitled “Hawai‘i’s Energy Initiatives Support Sustainable Economic Development.” OHA is teaming with the Hawai‘i Energy Policy Forum to explore the economic opportunities for Hawaiian small business on a day that is entirely dedicated to the rapidly changing energy sector, a sector for which expenditures approached $6.2 billion in 2007. Experts will discuss the challenges and opportunities in the areas of energy efficiency, energy security, renewable energy, and emerging technologies.

The conference would not be possible without the support of sponsors and community organizations and we would like to express our gratitude to Bank of Hawai‘i, Queen’s Medical Center, Kyo-Ya Hotels and Resorts LP, the Hawai‘i Energy Policy Forum, the U.S. GSA Small Business Utilization Office, the Hawai‘i Procurement Technical Assistance Center, and the Native Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce.

We thank you for attending and look forward to working with you create a better life for the native Hawaiian community and for all the people of Hawai‘i!

Sincerely,

Mark B. Glick
